

“Global Burden of Animal Diseases”

Benjamin Huntington MRCVS, Programme Manager, Global Burden of Animal Diseases

Ben Huntington is a veterinarian who worked in clinical practice (including in Bonnyville, AB) specialising in cattle work, before spending several years in technical and operational roles for an integrated poultry meat business in the UK. During this time Ben chaired an industry antimicrobial stewardship committee and managed a company-wide campylobacter reduction programme. Having joined initially as project manager in early 2019, Ben now has management oversight across the programme’s activities with a focus on engagement, evaluation and gaining further investment for future phases of work.
